Developing a Safety Plan

If you are living in a violent environment:

- Prepare NOW in case you need to leave in a hurry.
- Have a safety plan to protect you and your children.

Why is safety planning important?

- A safety plan can help to keep you safe and prevent future injury.
- Creating a safety plan can empower you to have some control over your situation and minimize a sense of anxiety and powerlessness.
- A safety plan can help you focus on your safety and future.
- Creating a safety plan requires you to trust and incorporate advocates, friends and/or family into your situation, creating a support group.

How can clergy and spiritual leaders be most effective in helping with a safety plan?

- Recognize your boundaries and accept your limitations to help.
- Be prepared to possibly deal with your personal issues.
- Do not develop the safety plan for the victim/survivor.
- Resist emotional reactions and respond with careful thought and action.
- Remember every situation is different.
- Encourage victims/survivors to include trusted family and friends in their plan.
