In this conversation Dr. Sonu and Rev. Dominique Gilliard (Director of Racial Righteousness and Reconciliation) discuss the racial disparities associated with COVID-19. They explore why these disparities are so glaring, the root causes of racial health disparities, and COVID’s connection to a broader history of injustice and inequity within healthcare. Their conversation ends with a discussion on why COVID is spreading so aggressively behind bars, and ways the Church can help love our neighbors during this pandemic, while also advocating for a more equitable system of healthcare.

Dr. Stan C. Sonu is an internal medicine/pediatric specialist at Grady Hospital in Atlanta, Georgia. He is recognized as a leading practitioner in the medical field of trauma, particularly regarding his work on Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACE’s), and creating systemic equity within healthcare. You can watch Dr. Sonu’s TEDX Talk on The Science of Adversity and the Case for Systemic Empathy. Dr. Sonu is also a member of New Life Covenant Church.

Additional Resources:

COVID-19 Racial Disparities
What the Racial Data Show: The pandemic seems to be hitting people of color the hardest
Blacks, Hispanics Hit Harder by the Coronavirus, Early U.S. Data Show
Indian Country faces higher risks, lack of resources in COVID-19 fight

Root Causes
Why are Blacks dying at higher rates from COVID-19?
Tuskegee Experiment: The Infamous Syphilis Study
Acres of Skin: Human Experiments at Holmesburg Prison
Medical Apartheid: The Dark History of Medical Experimentation on Black Americans from Colonial Times to the Present
Why I don’t feel safe wearing a face mask

History of inequality within healthcare
How does implicit bias by physicians affect patients' health care?
Unwanted Sterilizations and Eugenics Programs in the United States
Victims speak out about North Carolina sterilization program, which targeted women, young girls and blacks

COVID’s aggressive spread behind bars
Chicago’s Jail Is Top U.S. Hot Spot as Virus Spreads Behind Bars
Tracking Responses to the COVID-19 pandemic behind bars
Memorial for Ronald Rice, our North Park Theological Seminary student in the School of Restorative Arts program at Stateville who died due to COVID.