COVENANT ORGANIZATIONAL DESIGN

Proposed Covenant Bylaw Amendments | Executive Summary

At Gather 2023, during the 137th Annual Meeting of the Evangelical Covenant Church, delegates will vote on the proposed Covenant Bylaw Amendments that support Phase I of the recommended Covenant Organizational Design. This design seeks to align the mission God has given us with the resources God has provided to us in this season, to set us up for a fruitful and thriving future in the years to come. And, we have proceeded through this process by:

1. Having our mission and mission priorities remain our central focus.
   a. Mission: to join God in God’s mission to see more disciples among more populations in a more caring and just world.
   b. Mission Priorities: make and deepen disciples; love mercy and do justice; serve globally; develop leaders; and start and strengthen churches

2. Being together, not divided.

3. Working within what God has provided us financially in this season.

4. Communicating in timely, relevant, and clear ways.

5. Pursuing the good of the whole church over individual stakeholders and groups.

6. Serving with integrity.

In the proposed structure, the mission and the mission priorities remain our central focus and will drive everything we do. The proposed structure will allow us to better serve churches and conferences with focused resources that meet the needs of our denomination’s mission.

To support this proposed structure, recommended Bylaw amendments are needed. The following describes the rationale for the recommended amendments:

- To align the Bylaws with the proposed structure.
- To remove specificity of role titles to allow for greater flexibility for the denominational future.
• To align our Bylaws for a more collaborative approach to our mission and our mission priorities.
• To create a structure that enhances faithful stewardship.

In the coming pages, you will find information and context to better understand the proposed bylaw amendments that are coming to you for approval. This section includes:

• Proposed Bylaw Amendments that allow the denominational team to be more responsive to the needs of the Evangelical Covenant Church.
• Phase I of the Covenant Denomination Organizational Structure.
• Supplemental Information to provide additional context.

We look forward to continuing to live out the Covenant mission through our five mission priorities through this new structure.

COVENANT ORGANIZATIONAL DESIGN:
SUPPLEMENTAL INFORMATION FOR PROPOSED BYLAW AMENDMENTS

Process and Timelines

1. Why are we going through an organizational structure change?
   - The purpose is to align the mission God has given us with the resources God has provided to us for this season, to set us up for a fruitful and thriving future in the years to come.
   - Our current context calls for our organization to be structured in a way that allows us to adapt more responsively and quickly to better serve the needs of our local and global churches, communities, and conferences – 3StrandStrong.
   - Our mission and mission priorities are central to who we are, so it is prudent to make adjustments to our structure when we have a change in leadership, such as a new president. This is an opportunity to optimize and reflect the gifts of our president and leaders who provide guidance and direction to our denomination.

2. What guiding principles are used in the change process?
   - Mission and mission priorities remain our central focus.
   - We work together, not divided.
   - We work within what God has provided financially.
   - Communication is timely, relevant, and clear.
   - We pursue the good of the whole church rather than individual stakeholders and groups.
   - We serve with integrity.

3. What does Phase 1 of the change process include?
   - The first phase includes a framework for organizational structure change that focuses on leadership role alignment, clarity of reporting relationships, and necessary bylaw modifications.
• This phase introduces the process of navigating change and begins to look at structure, systems, processes, and strategies in the perspective of “whole” denominational organization to determine areas of redundancy, needed efficiency, and alignment.

• A needs survey was conducted as part of Phase 1 to assess the needs of churches. These results inform the efforts to align the work of the denominational team as we focus on the five mission priorities and serving the church locally and globally.

4. Why are changes to the bylaws being suggested?
• Our constitution and bylaws govern and provide prescriptive guidance to aspects of how we operate as a denomination. Periodically, we adjust bylaws to adapt to current times. Modifying elements such as details about names and job descriptions allows the denomination to meet the needs of churches and conferences in a more flexible, collaborative, and timely manner.

• Any proposed changes to the bylaws must go to the Annual Meeting for a vote. The proposed organizational structure provides context for the bylaw changes.

5. Assuming the bylaw changes are approved at the Annual Meeting in June 2023, when would Phase 1 of the organizational design go into effect?
• If the bylaws are approved, the Phase 1 portion of the structure is currently anticipated to go into effect October 1, 2023.

6. What happens in the next phase?
• Phases are a way to thoughtfully build out and make modifications to the rest of the organization. This means the leaders identified in Phase 1 will assist in recommending adjustments to subsequent phases of structure to better align us for our work. Utilizing the input and gifts of leadership from missional areas and services will make space for those closest to the work to inform the work/structure needed to serve the mission of the church.

• The next phase also includes beginning to look at how areas work together and how we more intentionally think about process/systems/planning together with input from those involved in the work.

Structure

7. What is the difference between appointed roles and elected roles? Which roles are elected, and which are appointed?
• The president and all executive ministers are elected roles. The Annual Meeting elects these leaders to ensure the advancement of the mission of the Covenant.
• The proposed structure has four elected positions: president of the Evangelical Covenant Church, executive minister of the Ordered Ministry, executive minister of Serve Locally, and executive minister of Serve Globally. Elections for each position are held by the Annual Meeting every four years.

• The elected leader positions are proposed to guide areas of ministry (Serve Clergy, Serve Locally, Serve Globally) instead of specific titles and mission priorities. This arrangement is conducive to better alignment, collaboration, and leadership across the mission priorities. It also allows for better stewardship of our resources.

• The three vice-presidents (Mission Priorities, Mission Services, and Finance) are appointed by the president and ratified by the Executive Board. The executive directors of Operations, Advancement, and Marketing and Communications are also appointed.

• Appointed roles are appointed by the president and ratified by the Covenant Executive Board. The continuity that an appointed role provides is not limited by terms, which reduces disruptions from transition and allows an organization to be maintained continuously.

8. What are the term lengths for the vice-presidents and executive ministers?

• All elected roles (the president and all executive ministers) serve for four-year terms.

• Appointed roles (vice-presidents and executive directors) do not have term limits and are managed as employees of the organization against their responsibilities.

• All roles are subject to annual reviews.

9. Which roles are ordained or credentialed?

• The president and the executive minister of the Ordered Ministry are the only roles that require ordination.

• The vice-president of Mission Priorities, executive minister of Serve Locally, and executive minister of Serve Globally are recommended to be credentialed roles but do not require ordination.

10. How will this new structure work in the beginning?

• The executive minister of Love Mercy Do Justice, Paul Robinson, and the executive minister of Start and Strengthen Churches, Paul Lessard, have terms that are set to renew at this Annual Meeting. If the proposed bylaws are approved, these two roles and the executive minister of Make and Deepen Disciples would not need to be renewed.

• If the proposed bylaw amendments are approved at this Annual Meeting, the appointment for one year of interim leadership with Paul Robinson serving as the interim executive minister of Serve Locally would go before the Covenant Executive Board for approval. Election for this new role would be slated for 2024.

• If the proposed bylaw amendments are approved at this Annual Meeting, the appointment of Paul Lessard to the role of vice president of Mission Priorities would go before the Covenant Executive Board for approval.

• The following leaders would continue in service according to the terms they were elected to or the roles they were appointed to:
  - Executive minister of the Ordered Ministry – Herb Frost (term ends 2026)
  - Executive minister of Serve Globally – Grace Shim (term ends 2026)
  - Executive director of Advancement – Gayle Gilreath (appointed)

11. What is the reasoning for combining mission priorities under Serve Locally, and how will it work?

• According to our current bylaws, one executive minister oversees each mission priority. The revised structure proposes that the executive minister of Serve Locally leads the mission priorities of Make and Deepen Disciples, Start and Strengthen Churches, and Love Mercy Do Justice.

• The Covenant will continue to focus on every mission priority, but a one-to-one correspondence between a single leader and a single mission priority will no longer exist. One leader who oversees multiple areas will increase collaborative goal setting, prioritization, and better management of financial and personnel resources. The specific details of that setup will be addressed in subsequent phases.

• Phase 1 addresses executive leadership roles but not individual staff or team member roles or how they will work together and collaborate. The subsequent phases will build out this detail if the Annual Meeting approves the proposed bylaw amendments.

• The Covenant’s commitment to evangelism and discipleship, biblical justice and racial righteousness, church planting, and church vitality remains strong and core to our identity. Reconfiguring those teams does not convey a diminishment of the priority of this work but rather seeks to align the work more closely and reduce redundancies.

12. Is the Serve Locally area a reasonable scope for one executive minister?

• The Serve Locally area is about how the work is led, supported, and staffed rather than describing the scope. Many strong, capable leaders are already guiding much of the work included in this area, and the proposed arrangement will foster closer collaboration and aligning of goals.

- Serve Globally functions as one team focused on our mission priorities across the world. We envision the Serve Locally area functioning in a similar manner in the domestic sphere.

13. Is the development of lay leaders a new mission priority?

- The development of lay leaders has always been a priority to the Church. We foresee close collaboration between Serve Clergy, Serve Locally, and Serve Globally in developing lay leaders. As more and more churches turn to bivocational and alternate forms of church leadership, the lines between clergy and lay leaders become more fluid and require a more expansive, collaborative, and innovative approach.

14. Are there any concerns about an appointed person reporting to an elected person or an elected person reporting to an appointed person?

- The bylaws allow for varied reporting relationships. The president is the highest level of leadership in our denomination and is an elected role. Vice-presidents are appointed but are an extension of the president. One of the responsibilities of the president is to set appropriate authority and communication channels, and the vice-presidents follow the lead of the president. In our current structure, elected executive ministers report to an appointed person. There are no plans to change this in the proposed structure.

15. What happens to Covenant Offices Leadership Team (COLT) in the proposed structure?

- COLT is not an entity in our bylaws, but it has been helpful to have a regular meeting cadence between the president and executive leadership. The meeting cadence for the proposed leadership structure is to be determined, but President Tammy Swanson-Draheim highly values time with leaders and staff throughout the organization. New nomenclature will be determined to define the executive leadership teams to avoid confusion.

16. Will moving into this structure with the existing and proposed leaders reduce the ethnic diversity of our leadership?

- Filling the proposed vice-president of Mission Services and other open roles as part of the organizational build-out will include a continued priority of ethnic diversity as a guideline during the hiring process.

- Other than leaders who are transitioning out, the remaining leadership, which includes leaders of color, will continue in their roles. In addition, we intentionally seek to maintain and increase our diverse staff at Covenant Offices.
17. How does this structure demonstrate 3StrandStrong? What does this reorganization mean for how conferences will work with the denomination going forward?

- 3StrandStrong references the collaborative and essential partnership between the local church, regional conferences, and the denominational team.
- It is a high priority for the denominational team to align with our conferences and support the work that they are doing. There is greater opportunity for more collaboration, and this will be engaged in future phases.

Impact

18. In addition to facilitating the alignment of the mission with the resources, what other benefits will the structural changes offer?

- This structure brings greater focus to the work of the denominational team. The three executive ministers will work closely and collaborate on the mission priorities.
- Under the leadership of the president and vice-presidents, the teams will operate with overarching goals that will help to align their work to better focus on the needs of our churches and conferences.
- The structure is one part of the overall change management process, which will also include financial stewardship, reducing redundancy, and closing gaps or inefficiencies.
- The need for the development of lay leaders in our churches is a consistent theme. This structure creates an intentional pathway for current and future needs to be addressed through a structure that is more flexible and focused. The increase of lay leadership development under Serve Locally is one example of the denominational team responding to needs shared by both churches and conferences.
- With mutual goal setting, we envision the teams collaborating together in order to meet the identified needs of churches, along with partnering with conferences.

19. What is the financial sustainability of this model? What are the cost savings?

- Finance is producing a financial model to create a more sustainable future. Cost savings have already been identified and will be intentionally addressed in future phases.
- This proposed phase has a reduction of two executive ministers and a reduction of the executive director of Ministry Development. The vice-president of Mission Services and VP of Mission Priorities are new roles. The net executive reduction in this phase is one full-time equivalent.
- Structure is just one piece of the financial puzzle. The denominational team has been working hard to reduce expenses. The proposed structure supports combining some mission priorities, which intends to eliminate unnecessary redundancies and supports a more targeted focus on shared initiatives.
20. When will we find out about the status of remote work?

- We do not yet have a timeframe for the remote decision.
- Completing all phases of the reorganization process is essential to understand the work that needs to be done through each employee’s role. Once the new structure has been fully fleshed out, that will be the logical time to determine how best to align work and location requirements. We will provide ongoing updates if the bylaws are approved.
