Best practices for serving the marginalized in Albania...

Driving into the village outside of Korca, Albania, I asked Dr. Patriot, "How did Medical Ambassadors Albania decide to address the waste water drainage problem in this village?" Dr. Patriot replied, "We didn't decide the project—the community did. That's the way it should be." Dr. Patriot explained that the whole community is taking ownership and are participating in the labor and providing some of the materials.

Since the village is situated at the base of a steep hill, whenever it rains, the runoff floods the village below. Sometimes the latrines overflow and occasionally the contaminated water gets into wells in that area, causing water-borne illnesses. The waste water drainage problem exists throughout the village, but the CWR funded project is being carried out in the worst affected area. The majority of people in that area are Roma people, those who are lowest on the social ladder. The fact that the community leaders chose to address the problem in that area surprised even Dr. Patriot. Roma people and other marginalized people are often ignored, but not in this village.

We are thankful for partners like Medical Ambassadors Albania who know and practice best transformational community development principles.
